About me

My name is João, I come from Portugal and reside in Germany most of the time. I'm a fullstack developer with a focus on frontend development. I love programming and currently have different projects under development and other ideas to bring to reality. I care a lot about libre software and Linux is my daily driver. I'm also very interested in internet privacy, sustainable technology, human and animal rights. I would love to put my technical skills to good use in projects that have a positive global impact.
